5. (Unclassified - GLC) William Evans, Administrative Assistant to Senator Edward M. Kennedy, called to say the Senator had received a letter from a friend which contains some information he thought might be of interest to us. I told Evans I would be on the hill tomorrow and would drop by to see him then.

6. (Unclassified - GLC) [redacted] in the Library, called to say that Mr. Simmons, State Department Liaison Officer, has called and requested an intelifax check for statements made by representatives of six NATO countries on the subject of U.S. monopoly of the control over nuclear weapons. Simmons indicated that the Department desired this material in connection with their contacts with the Congress. [redacted] was merely alerting us to this request. When the material is collected, she will check with us again. (The countries included are West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands, Greece and Turkey.)

8. (Internal Use Only - JGO) Mr. King, Assistant to Congressman John V. Lindsay (R., N. Y.), called and requested advice whether the Ransom book published in 1957 was the most current on the question of decision making in the intelligence community. I advised him that as he knows the Ransom book is not an official publication, I provided him with the citation of the Congressional print of the Clark Report of 1955 and the Britannica Book of 1963 article by Allen W. Dulles, "The Craft of Intelligence."
